PRC Laws and Regulations

Law of the People's Republic of China on the Protection of the Disabled, adopted at the 17th meeting of the 7th NPC Standing Committee on 28 December 1990, and revised at the second meeting of the 11th NPC Standing Committee on 24 April 2008. This law will be effective as of 1 July 2008. (Presidential Decree No 3, signed by State President Hu Jintao on 24 April 2008) This law consists of nine chapters with 68 articles. (Full text: RMRB 25 Apr 08)

BEIJING, May 9 (Xinhua) - The Chinese Ministry of Civil Affairs issued a regulation to better manage disaster relief donations here on 8 May. The new regulation focused on embezzlers who will be ordered to return donations and will also face legal action. The donations recovered will only be used for disaster relief, the regulation reads. Staff working in organizations dealing with donations where severe losses occurred will also face legal action. The new regulation also expands the type of disaster relief organizations. Social organizations approved by the government above the county level can also receive donations. The regulation orders that government organizations should not use donations as expenses, but allows non-governmental organizations to use some of the donations as their working expenses. The regulation also says when natural disasters occur in foreign countries, the civil affairs department of the State Council will coordinate any related aid from non-governmental organizations. (XNA, 9 May 08)

Food Safety Law of the People's Republic of China (draft). This law consists of ten chapters with 98 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 21 Apr 08)

Implementation Regulations for the Labour Contract Law of the People's Republic of China (draft). The regulations consist of five chapters with 45 articles. (RMRB, 9 May 08)

BEIJING, May 8 (Xinhua) - China's Legislative Affairs Office of the State Council made public the draft of implementation regulations for the labour contract law to solicit public opinions. The draft mainly addresses the term of labour contract and economic compensation after labour contract termination and the dispatch of laborers. The Labour Contract Law, which took effect on Jan. 1, 2008, entitles employees of at least 10 years' standing to sign labour contracts with no fixed termination dates. The term caused some confusion on the general public and employers. Some people said it would weaken enterprise vitality. Law experts, however, said the term aims to promote a sense of stability among employees and a harmonious relationship between employees and employers. Meanwhile, a labour contract with no fixed termination dates did not amount to a lifetime contract. Termination of such contract is possible if there are legitimate causes. The draft stipulates that under circumstances including employee's incompetence to live up to job requirements during the trial use period, serious violation of regulations and duty dereliction, the employers could terminate labour contract with no fixed termination dates. Bankruptcy would also justify the termination of the contract, according to the draft. The draft stipulates that the employers should double the amount of compensation if they terminate the contract at their own will. After the implementation of the Labour Contract Law in January, a string of staff-sacking scandals in many companies followed. The most renowned of them is the "voluntary resignation" scheme by the Guangdong-based Huawei Technologies Co. Ltd., China's telecom network equipment giant. Huawei asked its staff who had worked for eight consecutive years to hand in "voluntary resignations". Staff would have to compete for their posts, and sign new labour contracts with the firm once they were re-employed. (XNA, 8 May 08)
